NM saves thousands of children from losing Medicaid coverage

New Mexico has reinstated Medicaid coverage for approximately 21,000 children, giving their families a second chance to renew their health care coverage, the New Mexico Health Care Authority announced.

"Keeping children covered was one of our biggest priorities as the public health emergency ended," said Kari Armijo, Cabinet secretary of the

New Mexico Health Care Authority. "Being able to reinstate thousands of children who lost coverage means increased access to vaccinations, checkups, well child visits, and behavioral health services that otherwise they may have gone without."

Approximately 3,700 children in this group are between the ages 0 and 6, and will now have continuous Medicaid enrollment up to the month they turn age 6, thanks to a change to the program that went into effect in January 2024, according to a news release.

"As the pandemic and three years of continuous Medicaid enrollment came to an end, we knew children were a group more at risk of losing coverage due to lack of response than due to financial ineligibility," said Dana Flannery, Medicaid director. "We were pleased to be able to make a program change earlier this year to keep kids up to age 6 continuously enrolled, and to now be able to reinstate all children ages 0-19 who were disenrolled for not responding to requests for information to verify eligibility."
